Dear Member,

A hundred years back when India slept the RCGC had its tryst with destiny. Two visitors from a little island landed themselves in Calcutta and liked what they saw. Chance directed, chance erected the city might have been, custom was yet to stale her infinite variety. Smitten by the charm, King George V and Queen Mary chose to commemorate their visit by conferring the title "Royal" on a club founded in Calcutta some 80 odd years even before 1911.

Last month marked 100 years of the Royal investiture. Today the Royal Calcutta Golf Club, nearly 200 years young, flushes in its first bloom.

The spectacular fairways are almost matched by greens of a quality unseen in Calcutta. For the first time ever we achieved tournament quality – fast and furiously firm putting surface. (12 on the stimpmeter for speed and 130 on the Clegg meter for bounce that too before the daily roll). Age may have withered the city but not the Royal.

To celebrate the coming of age, may I request the pleasure of your company in a series of golfing encounters planned during the period of 26 – 29 January 2012.
